Sightseeing

Archaeological Museum of Marathon

7 locals recommend

The Museum displays exhibits of pottery (mostly from the Cave of Pan), marble works such as inscriptions, busts of Herodes Atticus and his students, bas-relief statues and inscriptions of Roman times, as well as the statues of Brexiza – the only Egyptian Sanctuary in the Helladic territory.

Marathon Dam

The Marathon Dam was seen as a major symbol of modernization in Greece. The dam's location near Marathon signified a connection to Greece's past with the Athenians' victory at the Battle of Marathon, while its modern structure, the largest project in the Balkans at the time, signified a connection to the future and victory over nature. A replica of the Athenian Treasury temple at Delphi constructed at the base of the dam further illustrates the connection. A plaque on the temple reads:

"To commemorate their victory at the battle of Marathon, the Athenians erected a treasury at Delphi. This building is a replica and commemorates a victory at Marathon in wrestling from nature its life giving water for the citizens of Athens."

The dam's face and visible structure were also covered in the same Pentelikon marble that was used to construct the Parthenon.

Saint Efraim Monastery

Every year, thousands of believers embark on a pilgrimage to the monastery – especially people in search of cure – since the Saint was known for his miracles.

The monastery is a short 10 minute drive from the Marathon Breeze estate. It's architecture and serene setting offers a unique experience for those who visit.

Marathon Run Museum
